"Brighter" By The Dozen

This night-blooming cereus of Mrs. W. L. Guthrie's has really produced the blossoms this year, she says. It is a thriving plant – now just five years old, and originally just a leaf from another "night-bloomer" of a friend, Mrs. Rebecca Rutledge. Mrs. Guthrie's grandson, Kenneth Lee Holt, stands beside the plant which last week had nine blooms Thursday evening, three the night before, and there is good possibility that the cereus will bloom again before cold weather. Other growers of this exotic, unusual plant report that blooms this year are unusually large and, as always, quite fragrant. Some people call the plant the "star and manger" plant because the inside of each white and pink-tinged bloom has what appears to be a tiny manger with a star-like cluster hanging over it. Each bloom last for just one evening, then closes up. A single leaf can produce a new plant, but as Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie can tell you (as well as others), it takes care and effort to produce a tall, healthy cereus like this one.

'Lee and Grant' By Dollmaker

Mrs. Tilden Lee, a skilled costumer and seamstress, has recreated General Robert E. Lee and General Ulysses S. Grant seated at a table, in the manner of the Guillaume painting portraying the Generals as they agreed to terms of surrender April 9, 1865 in the parlor of Wilmer McLean's home, now a part of Appomattox Court House National Historical Park. Mrs. Lee constructed the tiny table from costume jewelry a string of beads (for the beaded legs), and used a hand-held saw to cut out the wooden sections. For a miniature inkwell she sawed apart a car-coat button. The generals' tiny boots are carefully stitched from black oilcloth with tiny wooden heels. The tableaux has been purchased by Mrs. C. F. P. Crawley for the Lee-Grant Gift Shop, and Mrs. Crawley has had made as a backdrop for these doll figures, a photograph of the well-known Guillaume painting so that visitors and historians can have a clear idea of the setting for the famous events of 104 years ago. Mrs. Lee has won many prizes for her dolls and costumes. She enjoys recreating historical characters, she says, and doing the detailed research necessary to make each creation authentic.

"Sense In Sun" Time

It's "Sense in the Sun" time in Virginia -- time for the American Cancer Society to warn that excessive and prolonged exposure to the sun can cause skin cancer.

"Too much sun could well be the principal cause of skin cancer for an estimated 2,100 people this year in Virginia," according to Dr. David E. Smith of Charlottesville, President of the American Cancer Society's Virginia Division.

"A large proportion of all skin cancer can be prevented," he added, "if people avoid excessive exposure to the sun." Pointing out that skin cancer accounts for 23 percent of cancer among American men, he said that fishermen, construction workers, and sportsmen should be especially aware of the hazards of over-exposure to the sun. The elderly and fair-skinned, fair - haired people should also use extra caution in the sun.

Dr. Smith noted that the American Cancer Society in Virginia is conducting its "Sense in the Sun" program this summer to increase public awareness of the dangers of skin cancer and its prevention. As part of this program an educational leaflet entitled "Sense in the Sun" is being distributed throughout the state by the Society's volunteers.

The leaflet suggests three preventive measures: 1. Avoid over-exposure to the sun by wearing protective clothing. (Sun rays are most powerful in midday, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.) 2. Wear a hat to deflect the sun's rays. 3. Use a skin ointment or lotion to block ultraviolet rays and to prevent skin from becoming cracked or thickened.

According to American Cancer Society statistics, skin cancer is one of the most common types of cancer, accounting for 110,000 new cases and 5,000 deaths annually.

Dr. Smith reports that on the hopeful side is the fact that skin cancer can be readily detected by observation and diagnosed and treated easily. See a physician immediately, he advised, if the following warning signals last two weeks or more:

"A sore that does not heal. Change in size or color of a wart or mole. Change in a scar or other skin blemish."

He also suggested that additional information about skin cancer may be obtained from any of the Society's Local Units throughout Virginia. The Society also has a half-hour color film entitled "Sense in the Sun" which is available for free public showing before clubs, businesses, and other community organizations.

Picnic Held At "Redfield"

A group of Bill Battle precinct workers for the Court House precinct, Appomattox, gathered for a midday picnic Saturday at "Redfields", home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Janatka. Mrs. Stuart Farrar, Appomattox County campaign manager for Battle says, "Much enthusiasm is being shown for Battle. Voters are realizing that Battle is the 'sensible choice' for today and the future; that he will get things done in our state; that he will be working with a friendly legislature in Richmond. Howell would be a 'do nothing' governor with an unfriendly legislature."

Mrs. Farrar wishes to remind everyone that it is very important to VOTE on August 19, and of course to vote for Bill Battle.

Mrs. C. Lewis McDearmon (Connie) is precinct captain for the Court House precinct, and she is working with much enthusiasm toward getting out a good vote for Battle. She is especially trying to get the young people interested in politics.

Musk Melon Is A "Big 'Un"

This musk melon held by Kelly O'Brien of Appomattox is a melon to remember. This old-fashioned variety usually weighs about three to four pounds, but this is "watermelon size" – at least twelve pounds, Kelly's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. O'Brien have been saving the best seed from their musk melons for the past thirty years. That combination of frugality and fertile Appomattox soil plus their care has continued to produce melons for the table for all these years. This is not the only big one in the patch, either, says Kelly – and the O'Brien banana cantaloupes are also going to be big ones, too. The three smiling youngsters in the picture just happened to be around when Kelly brought in his melon, but who can blame them for jumping into the picture – smiles and tasty melons are always welcome in Appomattox. The girls' names are Jan Stanley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Byrd Stanley, Cecilia McDearmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Lewis McDearmon, Jr., and Teresa Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elliott.

Who, Me???

My name is "Jock of Redfields", and surprising things can happen in a dog's life during an election year! For instance, there I was enjoying a summery Saturday, and all of a sudden I'm up to my ears in politics! Now they tell me I'm very much with the "young heart crowd" who are wearing the "Battle for Governor" stickers and urging everyone to vote on Tuesday, August 19. My owners? . . . the R. G. Janatkas of "Redfields", Appomattox, who were hosts to a young peoples' picnic Saturday as precinct volunteers in the current run - off campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

not trying to stifle trade or to deprive anyone of a right to earn a livelihood." He explained that housewives and others in the area had complained this summer of over - aggressive salesmen and of being bothered, unnecessarily, they think, by door-to-door salesmen of Bibles and other items. The ordinance, he said, would enable the sheriff's office to keep tabs on visiting salesmen and to control, if necessary, any illegal activities.

Sam Davidson, president of the Sport Spring Ruritans, notified the board that the Ruritans are planning to bring a circus to the county on Monday, Labor Day, Sept. 1.
